

KS4 Long Term Curriculum Plan: History, Year 11

Curriculum Aim: The Year 11 curriculum for History seeks to develop the solid foundations from the Year 10 curriculum in terms of both knowledge and exam skills. This course seeks to build on the narrative structures of Year 10 by moving into a depth study of Henry VIII, and then two further depth studies on the Cold War and Weimar and Nazi Germany. This year seeks to give students a clear understanding of the different key structures in both British and world politics, including a look at the changing face of Monarchy and Parliament's relationship under Henry VIII, and the growth of international political structures during the Cold War. We end the year with an in-depth investigation of how democracy can be subverted through the study of Weimar and Nazi Germany, and the conditions under which democracy can fall. Within this, students will develop and master the skills and techniques required for exam success and in particular will focus on moving students from discussions of causation and change to engaging with historical significance and narrative, source utility, and the complexities of historical interpretation.

Link to prior learning: This develops the skills learned in Year 10, as well as getting students to engage in greater depth with topics such as Henry VIII and Weimar and Nazi Germany that have been covered in Year 8 and Year 9. These units are designed to extend students' understanding not just of the specific historical contexts, but also of the structural and historic themes of democracy, political engagement, and dictatorship.

Rationale of sequencing: While we endeavour to give students a chronological understanding of the past, the Year 11 curriculum steps away from this in order to develop students' understanding of key political concepts in greater depth. By starting with Henry VIII students begin to investigate issues of representative democracy and constitutional monarchy, and in following with the Cold War, students can engage with the ideas of democracy, dictatorship, capitalism, and communism. It is these key concepts that form the basis of understanding the historical interpretations that are central to the Weimar and Nazi Germany course.
